A CROW HATCHERY.

How a Farmer Supplies a Milliner With Heads of the Birds.

Farmer Billings of Brookdale, Pa., has taken a contract to furnish a New York millinery manufacturer with crows' heads at 25 cents apiece, says a Susquehanna special dispatch to the New York World. It costs something to get a dead crow. "Alive it is an elusive bird, and ammunition is expensive, but Billings is an enterprising speculator. He has set up a chicken incubator, in which are placed as fast as laid the eggs of about 100 hen crows that have been trapped and confined with perhaps a dozen cock crows.

Within fifteen days the little creatures are hatched, and a fortnight later they are ready to be banded. It is understood that the head of a crow chick is worth just as much as an adult of the same species. At the unit price of four for $1 dead they will pay the producer. Billings has the only crow hatchery in the world.

THE ENEMY'S RE-ENFORCEMENT

(Original.)

"Why don't you shell that grove, Captain Birney?" cried the general angrily, riding up to a battery that was receiving a heavy fire without replying.

"General," stammered the captain, "do you—must I—fire into that grove?" The general glared at the officer and half drew his sword, then, sheathing it, he hissed: "Do you want me to cut you down for mutiny? Have you lost your head through cowardice or are you afraid of hurting the Yankees?"

Birney seized the lanyard of one of his guns and pulled it so fiercely as to break it. The shot was a signal for every gun in the battery to open fire, and a storm of shells went crashing through the trees.

"Now move your guns forward," said the general, "and give it to them."

Birney, with a life in death expression, advanced his battery, stopping occasionally to empty his guns, till at last the fire from the grove ceased altogether. The general continued beside Birney, directing the operations in person, and now ordered him to take his battery through an open gate along a carriage way past a large dwelling with colonial pillars in its front and place them on the crest of a slope, looking toward the valley, where the Federals were in evidence. As soon as this was done the commander turned to Birney and said sharply:

"Go to the rear under arrest."

"General," replied the young officer, breathing his sword, "I crave your permission to first go into the house yonder."

"What for?"

"To see if the inmates are alive."

"The inmates? What are they to you?"

"The world. There I was born. There less than a year ago I was married. It is not a week since I received word from my wife that she had in that very house just been delivered of a son. General, for God's sake let me go in and see if I have killed my wife and child."

The general stared at the young captain for a moment, then threw himself from his horse, and the two hurried into the house. They found desolation. There was neither sound of footsteps nor voice. But hark! The cry of an infant. With a common impulse they started forward, Birney leading the way, to a door, through which they passed to the cellar.

On a wicker lounge lay a young woman, her face white as ashes, her eyes closed. Standing beside her was a white haired man holding a tumbler, while kneeling an elderly lady fanned the invalid or the dead, none knew which. At the head of the couch stood a negro mammy rocking in her arms a baby and soothing it with soft words.

In a fury of tears the young husband and father, pointing to the livid woman, exclaimed:

"This, general, is what has induced you to brand me as a coward. You have forced me to fire on my wife, who but a few days ago had endured the pains of childbirth on an innocent babe. You have ordered me to the rear under arrest. Here is my sword; take it. I have no further use for it. I will never draw it again. I wish to God I had disobeyed your order and you had cloven my skull."

The general seized the young man's hand and whispered hoarsely:

"Boy, it wasn't I. It was war—grim, murderous, horrible war—not for Christians, for fiends; not for a fair world, for hell."

At the moment there was a cry from the babe. The mother heard it and opened her eyes. There came a lightning up of the white face as she recognized her husband. Then the lids fell again.

A heavy tread was heard on the floor above, and a voice asked for the general. An officer's face appeared at the head of the stairway.

"General," he said, "the Second brigade is being cut to pieces. They need re-enforcements."

"Never mind the Second brigade. They are men. Ride, quick, and bring a surgeon—for a woman."

The general turned to the group. Birney was kneeling beside his wife, begging her to open her eyes again—to live for his sake. She raised her lids languidly and tried to put her arms around his neck, but they would have fallen limp had he not clasped them for her. The old lady took the babe from its nurse and placed it with its father and mother. The old soldier stood by with bowed head, vainly endeavoring to keep the moisture from his eyes.

Then he turned to attend to stern duties.

The next morning the southern forces withdrew from the field and moved southward. The young wife and mother was so far recovered that Birney, though permitted by the general to remain with her, stuck by his command.

The general could never be brought to look complacently upon his having ordered a husband and father to fire on his wife and newborn babe. He wished to make reparation and at the same time refrain from laying bare so delicate a situation. His deliberations resulted in publishing the following order:

The gallant conduct of Lieutenant Clarence Birney in driving the enemy from the Birney homestead, he having to face a re-enforcement, requiring courage of the highest order, afforded an example of perfect soldiery never before witnessed by the commanding general.

Meanwhile the "re-enforcement" was not troubling himself about the general's order. He slept fifteen hours a day and when awake was principally interested in pulling on a bottle.

Mrs. S. B. Rutledge came Wednesday from Lyndonville to visit at the home of W. J. Blodgett.

George H. Slack has bought the H. H. Bailey property on Maple avenue, paying therefor $1,800.

Wallace Chandler of Minneapolis, has been the guest of his uncle, Col. A. R. Chandler, at Mari-Castle this week.

Mrs. Lavina Carleton and Mrs. Ellen Clapp of Barre came Tuesday to spend the winter with Mrs. Mary Holbrook.

F. A. Dunn finishes work next week in the grocery of J. F. Lamson and is to have the old route formerly owned by E. H. Hubbard.

At a box social held in Grange hall Thursday evening, the members of the high school and a few invited friends had an enjoyable time and the sum of nine dollars was realized from the auction sale of boxes. Dancing was indulged in, music being furnished by Mrs. Bertha Blanchard, pianist, and George Chatfield, violinist.

A large number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bailey and daughters, L. D. Williams, Wm. Gourley and E. H. and Herbert Hubbard were at the station Wednesday evening to say farewell as the party left for California, where they intend to make their future homes. They were joined en route by Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Dickerman and son and Mrs. George Tarbell of Granville, who plan to remain during the winter.

To Remove Paint From Wood.

To remove old paint from wood mix a quart of a bushel of quicklime with a pound of soda and a little water till it is about as thick as cream. Spread this on the paint and let it remain for about an hour, keeping it damp all the time. It will then be found that the paint may easily be washed off with soap and water.

The German Navy.

The German navy came into being during the first German-Danish campaign in the forties, with nine steamers, one sailing frigate, the Deutschland, and twenty-seven gunboats.

Curious English Custom.

Darlington (England) most curious custom is the presentation of the old falcon when the bishop enters Durham. This sword is the identical weapon with which Sir George Conyers slew "that monstrous and poisonous vermine or wyrm which overthrew and devoured many people in fight." This custom is full 500 years old.

Russian Citizenship.

A Russian who becomes a citizen of another country without imperial consent is liable under Russian law to the loss of all his civil rights and to perpetual banishment from the empire. If he returns he is liable to deportation to Siberia.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Favorites Beaten in Lexington Races Thursday.

In the post-season base ball games yesterday Cleveland defeated the Pittsburghs 3 to 2 and the St. Louis American team won from the St. Louis Nationals 3 to 2.

A baseball carnival is in progress at St. Albans to raise money toward defraying the deficit in the railroad's treasury after the northern league season closed. The carnival is well attended, dancing and vaudeville numbers affording the entertainment.

The average weight of the Williams line for the game with Dartmouth, on the Newton A. field, Newton Center, at 3 p. m., Saturday will be 177 pounds, and Dartmouth's will not be more than two or three pounds heavier. What the Williams men lack in weight, however, they hope to make up, as usual, in speed and if the weather man provides a dry field there will be plenty of lively foot ball on the Cedar street grounds.

At the Lexington, Ky., races Thursday Lady May and Patchen Maid heavily played favorites for the 2:17 pace and the 2:12 trot respectively, lost their opportunities to win by breaking at critical periods. The 2:17 race was won by Fumston, time 2:08½, 2:09¼, 2:08½. The 2:12 trot was won by Kirkwood, Jr., time 2:10 and 2:10½. Grace Bond captured the Kentucky stake for three-year-old trotters. Grace Bond broke the stake record in the first heat by trotting the mile in 2:10½, and again broke it in the second and final heat in 2:10¼.

LIQUOR DEALERS PRAISE POTTER.

Pass Commendatory Resolution on His Dedication of Subway Saloon.

St. Louis, Oct. 14.—The National Liquor Dealers' Association has decided to amalgamate with the Knights of the Royal Arch and the Knights of Fidelity, the name of the combined organizations to be The National Liquor League. Resolutions were adopted commending Bishop Potter for his action in dedicating the subway saloon in New York. The resolutions also advocate a reduction of taxes on whiskey, wines and liquors.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
